

Keeping our promise: What will it take to end preventable child and newborn deaths?

In collaboration with the Congressional Global Health Caucus Representative Dave Reichert and Representative Betty McCollum, Co-Chairs

Tuesday, October 13, 2015
10:30 am – 12:00 noon
Room 2103, Rayburn House Office Building

The world has made dramatic progress on child survival, cutting under-5 child deaths in half since 1990. Still, nearly 6 million children under 5 die annually from preventable causes. Can the world really reach the goal of ending preventable child deaths in the next 15 years?

This briefing explores UNICEF's "A Promise Renewed" annual report on successes and challenges in saving children's lives. Speakers from USAID and RESULTS will share their perspectives on U.S. global child survival programs, and the U.S. Government's role in ending preventable child deaths.

Attila Hancioglu, UNICEF

Chief, Data Collection Unit; Global Coordinator, Multiple Indicator Cluster Surveys

Kelly Saldaña, U.S. Agency for International Development
Deputy Director, Office of Health, Infectious Diseases and Nutrition

John Fawcett, RESULTS
Director, Global Policy & Advocacy

Please RSVP to oppa@unicefusa.org